Arts & Humanities

The A.A. in Arts & Humanities introduces students to a broad array of the arts and humanities and prepares students for transfer to a four-year college or university. Some students will choose an approved area of concentration, while others will explore the arts and humanities more generally.

Arts & Humanities A.A. Degree

Arts and humanities is the study of how human beings understand, express, and experience themselves and their culture. It includes language, literature, writing, art, theater, music, communications, digital media, and philosophy. Through the study of these disciplines, we learn how to think critically, independently, and imaginatively, how to understand the complexity of the world we live in and imagine a better one, and how to communicate effectively the variety of human experiences that define our individual and interconnected lives.

Faculty in the arts and humanities emphasize traditional and digital literacy related to the diverse human condition and experience, and provide hands-on learning in the classroom and film, music, and pottery studios. Students develop their talents through the guidance of experienced instructors who are practicing artists and professionals in their areas of specialization.

A student declares an A.A. in Arts & Humanities to explore a wide array of arts and humanities disciplines to help them identify a specific field of interest before they transfer. Students who transfer to a bachelor's degree program in the arts and humanities will have taken courses that are likely to relate to their chosen four-year major. The A.A. in Arts & Humanities is also the preferred degree option for students who wish to transfer in a field where FCC does not currently offer a formal credential, including (but not limited to): Africana studies, Arabic studies, Asian studies, creative writing, film studies, media and communication studies, modern languages and linguistics, philosophy, religious studies, or Spanish language, literature, and cultures.

Students who have identified their preferred field can choose to specialize further in the following areas of concentration within the A.A. in Arts & Humanities:

- Art
- Communication
- English
- Film and Video Production
- Mass Communication
- Music
- Theater

The A.A. in Arts & Humanities is also an ideal degree for students interested in earning an A.A. degree alongside the American Sign Language Studies Certificate, or for preparing to enter the Sign Language Interpreter Preparatory Program.
